

Is broadband fiber optic or fiber cable

Overview

"Fibre" (fiber-optic internet) specifically utilizes fiber-optic cables to transmit data rapidly and with high bandwidth. "Broadband" is a general term for high-speed internet, often delivered through DSL, cable, or fiber-optic networks. Fiber optic internet is a much more advanced type of broadband that moves data as light, which is a polite way of saying it makes copper feel like dial-up's older cousin. Here's a concise overview before we dive in: traditional broadband (DSL, cable, satellite) provides "always-on" internet through copper, coax, or wireless links, while fiber optic internet carries data as pulses of light over glass fibers for vastly higher throughput and minimal signal loss. This technology allows for incredibly fast speeds and reliable connections, even during peak usage times.
